Mount Uhud
About this mountain, the messenger of Allah (PBUH) once said, “Uhud is a mountain that loves us and we love it” (At-Tirmidhi). It is located five kilometres north of Madinah and it is the same place where the 2nd battle of Islam Uhud took place in 3rd Hijri.

The Battle of Uhud is the secondary decisive battle between the leaders of the Quraish, and their army, against Prophet Muhammad (s.a.w) and the Islamic army. The Battle of Uhud took place three years after the Prophet (pwbh)’s hijrah to Medina and one year after the Battle of Badr.

Quba Mosque is one of the few must-visit places in Madinah in religious reference. It is the second largest and prestigious mosque in Madinah after the Prophet’s (PBUH) Mosque.
About this mosque, Ibn ‘Umar (RA) narrated: The Prophet (PBUH) used to go to the Mosque of Quba (sometimes) walking and sometimes riding. Added Nafi (in another narration), “He then would offer two Rakat (in the Mosque of Quba).”

Wadi Jinn
Wadi Al-Baida is located at a place which is about 41 kilometres from northwest of Madinah. The valley is believed to have a mysterious effect as the cars move here without drivers driving them. Because of this bewitching phenomenon, this valley draws a million of people every year from all parts of the world.
We parked the car in neutral gear and to our amazement the car was moving slowly, even though the engine was switched off. First we thought the road must be sloped, but it wasn’t. In fact the car was moving upward on its own. After a while, the speed of the car increased.
We learned later that the mountains in the surrounding area have magnetic qualities, which attract cars. Any iron object with wheels will move on its own

Rawdah
The Rawdah is an area between the minbar and burial chamber of Muhammad. It is regarded as one of the riyāḍ al-Jannah. A green carpet distinguishes the area from the rest of the mosque, which is covered in a red carpet.
